

Attacked by the irate crowd, the bigot asked the police for sanctuary.
Clym Yeobright's mother succumbed to the venom of a snake bite.
Daily the volunteers went out to solicit funds for the indigent families
Europe's population was afflicted by a virulent plague known as the Black Death.
From each candidate's headquarters acrimonious charges would spew forth daily.
It was excruciating painful for the actors to read the adverse reviews that their performances had received.
My neighbor was astute enough to discern the adverse features of the mortgage.
No sooner did the lawyer scrutinize the extortion note than she called the police.
Once the virulent malady had run its course, my temperature dropped.
Our amicable relations with Latin America are an asset to hemispheric trade.
President Obama found that texting was an asset to his communication skills.
Since we felt that the ruling was arbitrary, we were loath to obey it.
The eminent impresario brought many cultural spectacles to our shores.
The general was sure to advocate that we give the enemy no respite from the bombings.
The play was so blatantly bad that the impresario fired its ineffectual director.
The vexatious buzzing of the mosquitoes as they surged about our heads nearly drove us insane.
The visiting dictator's ubiquitous entourage of bodyguards disturbed our tranquil city.
We were distraught upon hearing the venom spewed forth by the nefarious bigot.
When the business manager was accused of extortion, his colleagues sought to oust him from the firm.
With blatant discourtesy the reporters continued to harass the bereaved family.